US Defence secy makes first visit to NATO with allies

PTI ■ BRUSSELS

US Defence Secretary Pete Hegseth on Wednesday made the first trip to NATO by a member of the new Trump administration, as the allies wait to learn how much military and financial support Washington intends to provide to Ukraine's government. Hegseth held talks with UK Defence Secretary John Healey, before a meeting of the Ukraine Defence Contact Group at NATO headquarters in Brussels. Hegseth's predecessor, former Defence Secretary Lloyd Austin, set up the forum for drumming up arms and ammunition for Ukraine in 2022. Over nearly three years, around 50 countries have collectively provided Ukraine more than USD 126 billion in weapons and military assistance. But the meeting this week was convened by another country for the first time: the United Kingdom. All previous gatherings of the forum were chaired by the United States. No decision has been made on who might chair the next meeting, if one is called. Hegseth wasn't expected to make any announcement on new weapons for Ukraine. His trip comes less than two weeks before the third anniversary of Russia's full-scale invasion of Ukraine on February 24, 2022. Most US allies fear that Russian President Vladimir Putin won't stop at Ukraine's borders if he wins, and that Europe's biggest land war in decades poses an existential threat to their security. US President Donald Trump has promised to quickly end the war. He's complained that it's costing American taxpayers too much money. He has suggested that Ukraine should pay for US support with access to its rare earth minerals, energy and other resources. Some US allies worry that a hasty deal might be clinched on terms that aren't favorable to Ukraine. On top of that, Trump appears to believe that European countries should take responsibility for Ukraine's security going forward. Washington's 31 NATO allies also want to hear what Trump's new administration has in store for the world's biggest security organization. Trump traumatized his European partners during his first term in office by threatening not to defend any member that doesn't meet NATO guidelines for military spending. NATO is founded on the principle that an attack on any ally must be considered an attack on them all and met with a collective response. Membership is considered to be the ultimate security guarantee, and it's one that Ukraine is trying to secure. Ukraine's security needs and defense spending will be discussed on Thursday. European allies have hiked their military budgets since Putin ordered his troops into Ukraine, and 23 are estimated to have reached or exceeded last year the target of spending 2 per cent of gross domestic product. However, a third of members still haven't reached that threshold, and Trump is almost certain to target them again. Recently, Trump called for NATO members to increase defense spending to 5 per cent of GDP, a level that no member has reached so far — not even Poland, which is the closest, spending more than 4 per cent and expected to approach 5% this year. Speaking to reporters in Germany on Tuesday, Hegseth wouldn't commit to having the US increase its defense spending to 5 per cent of GDP. Hegseth said that he believes that the US should spend more than it did under the Biden administration and "should not go lower than 3 per cent." He said any final decision would be up to Trump, but added that "we live in fiscally constrained times" and need to be responsible with taxpayer money.
